P20591	BURKE, John	'Gap Between Upper Bala-Hissar and Bala-Burj, Looking Toward Beni-Hissar.' The Bala Hissar is the citadel that straddles Kabul to this day. In Burke's time it was part fortress, part barracks. Home to a small town of courtiers and servants, it also housed the British Embassy forced on the Afghans after the Treaty of Gandamak.	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20592	BURKE, John	'Timur Shah's Mosque.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20599	BURKE, John	'Interior of Fort Dakka.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20600	BURKE, John	'Kutchi Village near Dakka.' Kuchi people are nomadic herders who move their herds of camels and sheep down into Pakistan in winter and back to Afghanistan in the warmer months. In recent years their transnational lifestyle has been seen as a security threat by the national government.	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20601	BURKE, John	'Panorama Of The City of Cabul & Surroundings. Taken from Bala Bohj. Shepur in the Distance.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20602	BURKE, John	'The Amir Shere Ali Khan.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20603	BURKE, John	'Landholders and Labourers.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20604	BURKE, John	'Major Cavagnari, C.S.I. and chief Sirdars with Kunar Syud.'	1878-80, printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20605	BURKE, John	'The Family of the Dost.' The influence of Dost Mohammad, Emir of Afghanistan for four decades, towered over relations with the British. Up to his death in 1863, he forged a sense of Afghan unity whilst guiding a difficult path between British and Russian imperial expansionism and frequent provocations by both of them.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)
P20606	BURKE, John	'Soldiers of the 72nd (Duke of Albany's Own Highlanders) Regiment.' A heliograph team equipped with early Aldis lamps and signalling mirrors which were deployed for long-distance mountain-top to mountain-top communications back to Imperial India.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)
P20607	BURKE, John	'Jellallabad. Scene in the City with musicians.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)
P20608	BURKE, John	'Officers. QO Guides.' The Queen's Own Guides, a battle-hardened regiment with a somewhat maverick reputation, were headquartered near to Burke's home in Murree. Veterans of many frontier campaigns, Burke would have known them socially and would have often photographed their parades and medal ceremonies.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)
P20609	BURKE, John	'Officers. Her Majesty's 51st Regiment on Sultan Tarra.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)
P20610	BURKE, John	'Khan of Lalpura & Followers with Political Officer.' At the back of this picture, hard to distinguish in his turban, is the British Political Officer Robert Warburton. With an Afghan mother and British father, and a fluent speaker of Pashto, he enjoyed a long, distinguished military career.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011		$528.85 (£367.76)

P20611	BURKE, John	'Mahomed Tahir Khan, Aslam Khan &c of Ghazni.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2012	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20612	BURKE, John	'Nautch Girls.' These dancing girls would have performed for the Emir in his private chambers and were a popular motif for Indian photographers like Burke. Because they are not Muslim women, they could take employment as dancers and could show their faces to foreign photographers.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20613	BURKE, John	'The Amir Yakub Khan, General Daod Shah, Habeebula Moustafi with Major Cavagnari C.S.I. and Mr Jenkyns.' Proud and imperious, Cavagnari was chosen by the British as their envoy in Kabul knowing his arrogance would soon produce a casus belli. Within four months an angry crowd destroyed the Embassy and Cavagnari and Jenkyns were dead.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20614	BURKE, John	'Camp and Abattis At Sherpur. 5th Punjab Infantry. 25th Dec 1879.' This picture was taken two days after one of the fiercest battles of the war. A force of 50,000 Afghans besieged and then attacked the Cantonment and had been repulsed by the defenders making special use of the new 'Gatling' machine guns. Why Burke didn't photograph the aftermath is a mystery - more than 3,000 Afghan bodies lay on the minefield.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20615	BURKE, John	'Mackeson's Bridge.' Long trains of pack animals carried all the British supplies from India through the passes into Afghanistan. Up to 40,000 camels were employed. In fact, so many were requisitioned from northern India that it is thought that their loss set back economic development in the region by decades.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20616	BURKE, John	'Attock from Khyrabad.' This picture of the military bridge across the Indus appeared in Burke's Afghan albums but was actually shot in 1863 during the Ambela Campaign. It is signed by William Baker to whom Burke was apprenticed, but its inclusion in the folio suggests Burke may have made the picture himself (in Baker's employment) or been present assisting Baker, learning his trade.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20617	BURKE, John	'Guns Captured at Ali Musjid.' Burke photographed lines of captured enemy material on several occasions. The pictures were popular back in the Imperial homeland, giving the impression that the war was successful and therefore justified. Support faltered later in the campaign after battlefield setbacks and reports of savage reprisals.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20619	BURKE, John	'Landi Kotal Camp. Looking East Towards Ali Musjid.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20620	BURKE, John	'Shergai Heights looking towards Ali Musjid.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20622	BURKE, John	'Bala Hissar Palace. Cabul.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20623	BURKE, John	'Bala Hissar Palace. Cabul.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20625	BURKE, John	'Ali Musjid & Camp from Sultan Tarra.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20626	BURKE, John	'The "Residency". From outside of Bala Hissar.' The Residency had been the British Mission in Kabul and its destruction and the killing of its staff provided the pretext for a full-scale British invasion.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20618	BURKE, John	'The Dewan-I-Aum in Bala Hissar, Shewin Bala Burj & Sherderwaza.' After the capture of the Bala Hissar, the British quartered Gurkha soldiers in the ruins of the Royal Palace and gardens and the summerhouse that had been the British Mission.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20621	BURKE, John	'Durbar in Sherpur Cantonments.' A thin crowd of onlookers watches a British ceremonial display before a tent crowded with dignitaries.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20624	BURKE, John	'Another view of the Camp.' The British Cantonment at Sherpur waiting for an imminent attack by Afghan forces.	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2011	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20627	BURKE, John	'Panorama Of The City of Cabul & Surroundings. Taken from Bala Bohj. Shepur in the Distance.'	1878-80, presented printed by Simon Norfolk 2012	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20524	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Jawad, who like many Afghans uses just the one name, out playing with an old tyre in the Mikrorayan district of Kabul.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20525	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	'Radio TV Mountain' in the centre of Kabul seen from where the Kabul River cuts through the mountains creating the Deh Mazang gorge. In the first Anglo-Afghan War it was the site of a crucial skirmish and hasty retreat by badly outnumbered British cavalry who had blundered into the midst of a massive Afghan army.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20526	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Shah-do-Shamshira Mosque is known as the Mosque of the King with Two Swords. It was built in the 1920s on the order of King Amanullah's mother on the site of one of Kabul's first mosques named in honour of an early Muslim king who died fighting Hindu invaders.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20527	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Some of the nonsensical property development taking place in Kabul. The district of the city, Karte Char Chateh, is remembered by Kabulis as part of the bazaar which was burned by the British in 1842 as collective punishment for the killing of the British envoy. The fires still burned when the British retreated two days later.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20528	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The future home of the Afghan Cash and Carry Superstore on the road between the foreign embassies and Kabul airport.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20529	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The former home of Jangalak Industries, a metalworking factory that once had a workforce of 1,800 but was wrecked during the civil war in the 1990s. It is now used as a massive storage yard for scrap metal. This area is all discarded hospital beds and school desks.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20530	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Wasteland at the back of shops used as stabling for draught horses. In the distance is the Bala Hissar citadel, now home to an Afghan army base and mooring for one of the American blimps that carry electronic surveillance gear and cameras.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20531	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	'The Museum of the Jihad' in Herat. In the centre of the tableau of anti-Soviet mujahedeen guerrillas is Ismail Khan, one-time Governor of Herat and minister in the national government. Mythologizing their role in the Jihad helps justify their control and ownership of Afghanistan's modern warlord economy.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20532	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The Sham-e-Paris ('Parisian Evenings') wedding hall in the Taymani neighbourhood. Common in Pakistan, these huge wedding complexes have sprung up all over Kabul with dining and entertainment halls to seat a thousand on each floor and even an on-site honeymoon hotel.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20533	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	A watchtower guarding a street of foreign embassies in central Kabul. For the British army these improvised fortifications are called 'sangars', although the term is Dari for 'barricade' and is one of the few words the British brought home from the Anglo-Afghan Wars.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20534	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	On the very northern edge of Kabul. A shipping container is re-purposed as home to men working in a yard casting concrete blast walls. Each section, when sold to foreign embassies or the military, fetches $1000 per piece.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20536	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	A cellphone booster-station built on the wreckage of buildings that once housed a market.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20537	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Jaw Aka Faisal Nahman and his daughter Nono from Bamiyan province, now living in an improvised plastic shelter in the ruined gardens of Darulaman Palace. Built in the 1920s to house an Afghan parliament, 'Darul Aman' translates as 'abode of peace'.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20539	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The whole eastern side of Kabul, for miles along both sides of the Jalalabad Road is one huge logistics yard capable of supplying the foreign military and rapidly growing embassies with everything they might need from a single cup of coffee right through to an entire airstrip.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20540	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The districts of Wazir Akhbar Khan and Sherpur, home to all the NGOs and contractors, occupy the site of the former British fortress from the Second Anglo-Afghan War, 'the Cantonment'. Glitzy, kitschy 'poppy-palaces', flung upon a hectic property boom after the land was illegally re-posessed from squatters can command rents of $20,000 per week when leased out to internationals.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20541	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	The peripheries of the city of Kabul, especially to the north and east are endless building sites. Since most of the documentation concerning land title was lost during the war, much of this speculative and illegal construction is concerned more with establishing undisputable 'facts of the ground' which can be argued over later. Apartments and shops are, almost exclusively, unoccupied.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20542	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	A dumping ground for an abandoned Russian-era bomber that has now been incorporated into the car park of 'Shamshad TV', a new media company supported heavily by American money.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20543	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Kabul 'Pizza Express' restaurant behind the Kabul municipal bus depot.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20544	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Internet cafe, Herat.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20545	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	A security guard's booth at the newly restored Ikhtiaruddin citadel, Herat.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20546	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Unfinished, speculative property development near Kabul Airport.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20547	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	An entrepreneur creates a roadside tea stall at the busy Saraj-e Shomali traffic junction. Above him are adverts for banks; a 'win a free car' offer from a mobile phone company and the grave of a shahid or martyr.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20548	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	An informal market in the Mikrorayon 4 housing area, covered up for the night.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20549	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Pakistani apples for sale at a roadside market.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20550	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Refugees from fighting between NATO and the Taliban in the Nangahar province, close to the Pakistan border.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20551	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Some of the astonishing new architecture mushrooming up in cities all over Afghanistan. Part Disney, part wedding cake; inspired by Bollywood but reverential to Greek classicism; it represents an architectless kind of architecture.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20552	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Yards supplying construction materials in the Nawabadi Guzargah district of Kabul, overlooked by American-controlled electronic eavesdropping equipment on the summit of Kobe Asmai.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20553	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Radio Afghanistan's radio transmitters paid for by American money; broadcasting official government news and anti-Taliban security alerts.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20557	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	A Shia cemetery on the flanks of Kohe Asmai.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)

P20558	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	At Waisalabad high above West Kabul. It has taken 26 men from the Mine Detection Centre and four de-mining dogs more than three months to clear mines from an area the size of a few soccer pitches. Kabul's rapid expansion has increased pressure for building land. Mined areas that were once marginal are now in demand for house construction.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
P20559	NORFOLK, Simon born 1963	Historically, Kuchis were strongly pro-Taliban; feelings made more intense by being bombed by NATO off their traditional grazing lands in Helmand. They are allowed to set up camp here on Kabul's periphery only because it is below a large, new Afghan Army base.	2011	presented	$528.85 (£367.76)
