

Start your Surreal adventure here...

Use this resource at home. Find interesting Surreal artists at: www.kids.tate.org.uk. The Surrealists enjoyed playing 'Exquisite Corpse', which is like the drawing game 'Consequences'. Have a go below.

A Surreal Story with Consequences

A character called...

who was very...

Met a character called...

Whose favourite artwork was...

They loved the artwork because...

Their visit to Tate Liverpool suddenly turned into an adventure when...

In the end the consequence was...

A Surreal Consequences Character

HEAD
whiskers?
monster?
glasses?
horns?
beak?
hat?

BODY
tentacles?
stripes?
wings?
arms?
suit?
fur?

HIPS & LEGS
feathery?
trousers?
scales?
hairy?
skirt?
tail?

FEET
slippers?
flippers?
hooves?
shoes?
claws?
paws?

How to play 'Consequences': Take turns to draw a strange character or write a weird adventure story. Start at the top and fold to the dotted line to hide the writing or drawing, then pass it on. Make sure you leave a little bit of your drawing below the line for the next artist to connect with. Use your character and story as inspiration for your Surreal Sketch on the other page.

Continue your Surreal adventure here...

The Surrealists often created playful and sometimes scary artworks by putting objects next to each other that you wouldn't expect. Add to the image below and make a dream-like landscape.

A Surreal Sketch by

Surreal Sketch clues:
Here are some ideas of how to make your sketch into a dream-like landscape.

Content, photographs and design by interference-art

LIVERPOOL

TATE