Tate Film is supported by Maja Hoffmann / LUMA Foundation with additional support for Assembly from Bilge Ogut-Cumbusyan & Haro Cumbusyan.
The popularity of film and video has surged during the last decade, with screenings occurring in numerous venues from galleries to film festivals, from television to online. The development of digital technology has particularly impacted the distribution, aesthetics and accessibility of artists’ cinema. Reflecting this expanded field, Assembly is a unique opportunity to consider what is being produced here and now, throwing into relief and celebrating differences across various artists’ practices in the medium.

PROGRAMME NOTES

ABOUT NOW MMX
William Raban, 2010
35mm transferred to video
26 min 28 sec

Shot from the 21st floor of the iconic Balfron Tower in Poplar, the film surveys the City of London and the capital’s distant skyline. Shot predominantly in time-lapse, the film tirelessly maps the environment below, tracing late-capitalist London and revealing its otherwise unseen social and economic networks.

Lives and works in London
Raban’s practice spans Expanded Cinema, social documentary and landscape films. He managed the influential London Filmmakers Co-op workshop (1972–6). His films have been widely screened at festivals and in exhibitions including recent works Film in Space at Camden Arts Centre and Filmaktion at Tate Modern (both 2012).

THE FREESTONE DRONE
George Barber, 2013
HD video, 13 min

Unmanned aerial vehicles have become an omnipresent part of global warfare. The film imagines a drone deviating from its mission: passing over Waziristan (Pakistan/Afghanistan border) toward New York among other identifiable regions. The drone’s self-conscious narration overlays mostly found footage to consider the ethical and political implications of this applied technology.

IN THE KETTLE
Lis Rhodes, 2012
Video, 15 min

“The economic system promotes ‘freedom’ and ‘the individual’, while it holds to neither.”
—Lis Rhodes

By drawing on experimental and agitprop strategies, In the Kettle interrogates narratives and histories of repression and resistance. The film is concerned with “kettling” as a means of containing protesters, and the broader implications of recent police tactics.

Lis Rhodes (b. 1942, London)
Rhodes has been making films since the early 1970s. She was part of the filmmakers’ group that formed the women’s film and video distribution company, Circles (1979). SOUNDS FROM BENEATH
Project by Mikhail Karikis
Video by Mikhail Karikis & Uriel Orlow 2010–12
Video and sound, 6 min 45 sec

The film features the Snowdown Colliery Male Voice Choir who vocalise the sounds of a working coal mine. In a formation suggestive of a picket line, the choir is shown in a disused colliery in East Kent. This once industrious site, now abandoned, is re-animated through communal song as a lament for lost purpose and unused prowess.

Mikhail Karikis (b. 1975, Greece)
Karikis has presented work at the 54th Venice Biennale (2011) and Manifesta 9 (2012). Select London screenings and performances have taken place at the Whitechapel Gallery, South London Gallery, the Barbican, and the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden.

Uriel Orlow (b. 1973, Switzerland)
Recipient of a Swiss Art Award from the Swiss ministry of culture at Art Basel 2012, Orlow was nominated for the 2013 Film London Jarman Award. International group exhibitions include 54th Venice Biennale (2011) and Manifesta 9 (2012); solo exhibitions include Back to Back, Spike Island, Bristol (2013) and Unmade Film at Al Masmal Foundation for Contemporary Art, Jerusalem (2013).

ASSEMBLY: A SURVEY OF RECENT ARTISTS’ FILM AND VIDEO IN BRITAIN 2008 – 2013

Assembly is a major survey of internationally acclaimed single-screen artists’ film and video. Including more than eighty artists, the list is drawn from thirty-six leading international film specialists who were invited to nominate outstanding recent works. Screenings take place at Tate Britain in the Clore Auditorium on Sundays, feature length films are shown, and on Mondays curated programmes of shorter films are followed by discussions with invited speakers and the artists. Each weekly theme suggests a contested area of practice and prompts a dialogue that continues from one screening to the next, encouraging discussion and debate about contemporary film and video.
